City Needs Good Highways

The State Highway Department is expected to announce within the next week or 10 days the recommendations of a professionel engineering firm for the re-location of U.S. Route 62.

Salem city officials, civic leaders and merchants who have emphasized a strong desire to keep Route 62 fairly close to the city, are awaiting the engineers' report with some degree of anticipation.

The recommendation could be for that important highway's re-location far away from the city and such a proposal, obviously would be to Salem's disadvantage.

Salem needs its main highway arteries such as Route 45, 14, 9 and 62, although not necessarily traversing the downtown business district. Because the city's streets in most instances are not wide enough to accommodate heavy vehicular traffic, bypasses are the solution. These bypasses, though, should run close to the city to serve as vital highways to and from our industrious community.

If the engineers' report on the Route 62 study calls for a wide diversion of the highway from Salem, it should be the signal for local protests before the project is crystalized.

New highways built close to Salem will help the city in its future growth. Wholesale removal of highways from the city will hinder its progress.

Dulles Will Not Sell America's Soul

"I don't say that we are doing the best job that we can do-I know we are not; we ought to do it better. But I do say that we face conditions which are toally different from those of the Soviet Union, and I thank God that we do."

That, in esence, was Secretary of State Dulles' answer to criticism that America had lost another propaganda battle in the announcement of Soviet suspension of nuclear tests.

The United States, Secretary Dulles said, operates under a free press, a two-party system of government, an intelligent public opinion and the necessity of consulting allies. and "I wouldn't give up any of them."

The secretary's words had a ring of sincerity and complete honesty. They were spoker not out of weakness but out of firm conviction that our way of life and our democratic processes, though they may seem cumbersome and ineffective at times, are the bulwarks of the freedoms we enjoy and the implements by which we have established our moral standards in the world. This happens to be National Laugh Week and National Noise Abatement Week, too. There is no incompatibility, however.

No one can make a valid objection to the noise of laughter, which is like the sound of singing birds, spring peepers and all-American cash register.

There is a movement afoot among some of our professional laugh-provokers to save their commodity from extinction in the places where it is becoming rare-in public affairs. They believe one noise that should be abated is moaning and groaning, punctuated by howls of anguish. In its place, they would like to hear the uproarious distraction of a couple of belly laughs each week, like the ones that once were set off by laughters like the late Will Rogers. ertainly there is no shortage of mirthprovoking situation in public affairs. The shortage is of people who know how to exploit them, which these days would entail the risk of going contrary to the grim-and-grit faction that wants nothing to seem funny, lest a sense of proportion about America be restored. That would not be favorable to the gnim-and-grit faction's fixed purpose,, which is to get on with the disaster as rapidly as possible and no funny business!

Once Over

Congress has passed a bill limiting billboards on federal financed roads, bringing closer the day when an auto tourist can get a vista instead of a liver pill, kidney plaster or aspirin "plug."

The waterfall and babbling brook are to be liberated from the beer, cigar, tavern, codfish, frankfurter and dentifrice sales pitch. Use of green pastures and still waters as mere backgrounds for painted "commercials" is in for a setback.

The bill provides that states getting dough for thruways will get less if they don't curb billboards. It will be years before the sign plastered open road changes very much but ultimate deliverance of nature from behind "wooden curtain" seems certain.

Although he does not engage in expediences of the moment, Secretary Dulles is not blind to the easier ways of doing things, to the tacics that appeal to popular fancy when men are prone to forget their heritage and yield to the temptations of the mirage that lies directly ahead.

He recognizes each and every one of them. But, thank God, he also recognizes the frustraions, the disillusionments and the perils beyond the horizon.

Two Stitches in Time

Every fire chief and dog warden could look forward to a happier springtime if two stitches always were taken in time.

Each stitch could avert a seasonal wearing out of patience.

The first is awareness of the danger of grass fires resulting from carelessnes when first year's tinder-dry ground cover bursts into flames and runs the wheels off fire trucks and the legs off firemen.

The second is awarenes of the annovance of dogs whose feet suddenly grow to elephantine size when the ground is soft and householders are struggling to start grass and prepare flowerbeds.

No one ever intentionally starts a grass fire that threatens to burn down a neighborhood before it can be stopped. No one ever intentionally lets a dog turn into man's worst enemy, instead of his best friend.

These are acts of thoughtlesness, committed without thought of the consequences. Be kind to firemen and dogcatchers this

UN's 'Gift' Problem Unsolvable

By IRVING DEWITT TALMADGE

During its 12 years of existence. the United Nations has learned to live with the cold war, international disputes, threats of aggression and breaches of peace. However falteringly, it has dealt with all these problems.

What the diplomats at the U.N. have not yet mastered successfully is how to cope with assorted would - be - benefactors. the problem that has stumped them is how to turn down-with consummate tact-the offers of gifts that pour in from all parts of the world.

It takes a seasoned statesman to draft the right kind of letter to decline politely an offer of doilies for the delegates' lounge from a women's sewing circle or the "world's largest assortment of match covers" from a public spirited collector.

The offers vary with the seasons. At this time of the year, many of the proposed gifts are to improve the landscaped grounds of the U.N. A national women's organization heas suggested a "Garden of Nations" to be "financed, designed, planted, and tended by the women of the nations." A kindly lady in Texas wants "Peace Trees," and she is provided that the trees are "planted in the soil from each member

Educator Censors

Principals' Organization Seeks to Coerce Press

"Book burning" got a lot of criticism not so long ago from many quarters. Yet the idea of imposing economic penalties on the press, for it considers to be news, still survives i n America among certain groups. It raises a question of whether they really believe in freedom of the David Lawrence press, to which they constantly pay lip service as an ideal.

Thus, the National Association of Secondary School Principals has just sent out a letter from its Washington office to the principals of approximately 20,000 junior and senior high schools recommending that they threaten Time and Life magazines with a cancellation of school subscriptions "as long as they have an attitude and policy inimical to education."

The organization which sponsored the letter is a division of the National Education Association and the action was taken by the seven-member executive committee of the principals. The Association of Principals argues in its letter that it doesn't qquestion the right of the magazines to hold opinions on public education but that no magazine should be purchased for classroom use if it is "untruthful and, in this instance, Life falls into that category."

The article to which exception is taken appeared in the March 24 issue of Life and concerned statistics alleging that science, mathematics and foreign languages are neglected studies in United States schools.

WHETHER the article on such a controversial subject is palatable to the high school officials is not the real issue. What is important as a basic principle is that school principals undertake to act virtually as censors on a subject in which they themselves may be considered to have a vested interest. Even if a particular article is wrong, certainly the publishers are willing to print the other side. To threaten, however, to use the power over public funds as a punitive instrument to make any publisher conform to the viewpoint of any branch of the government is inimical to the whole spirit of constitutional practice in the United States. For it has been held that no governmental unit may use any of its powers to abridge the freedom of the press. The Supreme Court of the United States denounced a Louisiana statute for that reason and any ruling made by any subdivision of government would unquestionably also encounter court resistance. It is not a problem of what publications the individual principals may choose to read themselves as private citizens but it is a problem involving the right of school principals to use public funds to foster their own viewpoint on educational or other governmental policies, whether state or federal.

CERTAINLY the Parent Teacher Associations should be sufficiently interested to find out whether the secondary school principals in their respective communities are going to take orders from the private association in Washington or whether they are going to remain independent minded in their handling of school funds designed to provide news materials for use in classrooms.

There are, of course, plenty of publications available but none shoul be blacklisted just because there is disagreement with the views expressed. Surely students should have access to all points of view on controverial subjects in the news.

As for the two magazines in question, they doubtless will pick up subscriptions from persons who disagree with the school principals which will more than make up for those discontinued.

From an economic standpoint, the threat will be of no avail but it is startling to see any group of educators make the mistake of thinking that the way to change the attitude of a publication is to use governmental funds as a means of coercion.

Diversity of thought rather than conformity of thought has always been taught heretofore in the classrooms of America and it is to be hoped the secondary school principals will reverse their action and acknowledge their mistake. The New York Herald Tribune

Future Issues

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington's relative calm-it's been fairly quiet since Congress went home for Easter-ends next week when the legislators pour back for the last half of their 1958

This Congress already has done a lot of work - far more than usual for this time of year - but it has plenty ahead. Probably the most explosive issue is President Eisenhower's plan for streamlining the Defense Department.

Members of both parties have had a double reason for trying to make a good 1958 showing: (1) there's a recession and (2) this is an election year for all 435 House members and a third of the 96

The election campaign has started already. The Democratic boss of the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, proclaimed before the Easter holiday that this Congress under Democratic leadership has made a very impressive record, indeed.

Meade Alcorn, Republican national chairman, took a pre-Easter swipe at the Democrats, saying their leadership seems more interested in "concocting a phony political pitch for the fall elections than in the general welfare."

These are the main issues facing the returning Congress mem-1. Possibly a tax cut, if the recession gets worse. 2. Eisenhower's Defense Department reorganization plan. Already Democrats and Republicans. Eisenhower has promised to fight all the way through on this.

Next Thursday he'll carry his case to the people in a nation wide TV broadcast. Main complaint against his plan is the power it would give to Secretary of Defense McElroy, more power than any defense secretary ever has had.

There may even be a strenuous fight, openly or behind the scenes, by the armed services themselves. 3. The reciprocal trade program. first set op by President Roosevelt in the midst of the depression of the 1930s, and renewed ever

Under this the President is empowered to cut tariffs on imports from countries which in turn agree to cut their tariffs on imports from America. In this recession period there has been pressure to keep tariffs up to keep competition out.

4. Foreign aid. This program which involves loans, grants and military hardware to other countries - was set up under President Truman and has been pushed by Eisenhower.

5. Appropriations. Congress still has to approve the big appropriations bills - the money needed to run the government another

Reciprocal trade and foreign aid will no doubt get through in some form. Congress may drastically change Eisenhower's defense reorganization ideas. There'll be the usual pulling and tugging over the appropriations bills.

Here are some of the things Congress did before taking its brief

vacation: It passed bills to boost home building; step up highway construction, approve river and harbor projects; boost defense spending; and lift the debt limit from 275 to 280 billion dollars. It also approved a one-year freeze on farm price supports and acreage controls. But Eisenhower vetoed this. It's up to the Democrats now to see if they can get enough votes together to override the veto.

Blossoms prove that winter has given place to spring; fruit, vegetables and grain prove that harvest is at hand-all are miracles. We see them so often we take them for granted, and we forget there are other miracles, just as beautiful, just as significant, just as unfailing.

MIRACLES

The Church, bringing human lives into contact with God, produces miracles every day. Rough, actually evil people become powers for good. As winter changes into spring, so cold, barren nature blossoms and brings forth good fruit.

God depends on our help to cultivate the soil and care for the seed. Similarly, He looks to us to help bring the message of the Church, the message of salvation to others. He invites each of us to become part of His great miracle-working program.

Why not begin NOW? Become a part of the Church and its great work. Your own life will be enriched, your happiness increased, because you are a partner in performing miracles.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL ... ALL FOR THE CHURCH The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church reqularly and read your Bible daily. Monday....Song of Solomon
